Something About America's Maritime_Gift to British Nation During Boer War.

NEW YORK, September 6,-Mrs, Elsenora Kinnicutt, one of the hospital from the Mills Training School, and the officials of the State of New York, who recently returned from Europe, has written an interesting narrative of the mission and work of the American hospital ship Maine, now in Chinese waters, which follows herewith. Mrs. Kinnicutt requests, however, that her own name be not used:

So little is known in the United States of her mission, either present or past, that I ask leave to acquaint your readers with what she has death had occurred. accomplished and what she still aims to do for the relief of suffering humanity, and for the credit of our country in distant parts of the world. moving hospital, larger in its number of beds than most of the large hospitals of New York-we saw her sides and decks crowded with eager faces; men everywhere in invalid-chairs, on stretchers, and on crutches; with legs gone, arms gone, heads bandaged, and all in motley array. No gay trappings of dress-parade, only here and there a cap, a Giengary, or a fatigue jacket, to indicate the soldier's uniform.

We boarded the Maine and during the two hours before we reached the dock at Southampton there was ample opportunity to examine her.

Descending into the first ward-namd after Mrs. Whitelaw Reld, the genrous donor and adviser of Red Cross work everywhere-we found a number of patients in the cots. It was unnecessary to ask the nature of their trouole, for the pale faces and emaciated faces bore the unmistakable traces of enteric fever, the deadliest of camp followers. The ward was bright and well ventilated, the bed linen fresh and white, and everything scrupulously clean. Over each bed was suspended the name of its American donor-men and women with sympathies broad enough to stretch forth into the unknown for the unknown.

The ward capacity of the Maine is 210 beds. The surgeons and physicians, all of them first rank men from our best American hospitals, the nurses orderlies were a sturdy band, truly a "staff" upon which to lean. Despite the comparatively cramped quarters, modern scientific treatment had been carried out in the form of tub baths for the cases of enteric fever with gratifying results.

By means of an admirable Roentgen ray apparatus, sent out from New York, valuable assistance had been obtained in the treatment of gunshot injuries, and in a well equipped laboratory diagnosis in doubtful cases had been made by bacteriological examinations. A strange and happy fact to be record-ed was that during the three weeks' voyage of this hospital ship not a single

The patients, below deck, as well as above, were in excellent spirits, despite their disabilities, and one and all seemed grateful for what they termed their good luck in having been consigned to the "Yankee ship." At Madeira a few newspapers had been obtained telling of of a hospital ship originated with an the outbreak of trouble in China, and all were eager for the latest war news. proached the incoming Maine—this that the need for their ship was now greater in the far east than in the far south. A proposal to this effect met with cordial approval at the British war office, and on July 12 the Maine set sail for Chinese waters. She was reported on August 25 as having arrived at Hongkong on her way to her northrn station to receive the wounded.

Directly after the departure of the Maine the committee notified the United States Government at Washington f her intended destination, and offered a welcome and all possible and to our wick and wounded countrymen.

The American ambassadors at the courts of the allied powers were also informed of the departure of the Maine for China, and asked to notify the Governments to which they are accredited that their wounded would receive a cordial welcome on the American ship. Prompt and appreciative acknowledgment has been received from Germany, Italy, Austria-Hungary, and the other powers. A check for £1,000-a most timely and welcome gift—was also re-ceived from Mrs. Corning Clark, soon after the departure of the Maine. Mrs. Clark asked that the sum be used, if possible, to aid the men of the Ninth Inited States Infantry-the first American regiment to suffer in the field. J. Morgan & Co., 23 Wall street, are the treasurers of the Maine fund in New York.

This is the history, so far, of the American hospital ship Maine. If with this name is to be linked the word "ramember," may it be, in the future, with this sister ship of mercy, whose activities and sympathies, true to her Red Cross flag, are world-wide and corid-embracing.
